

OPTION 1

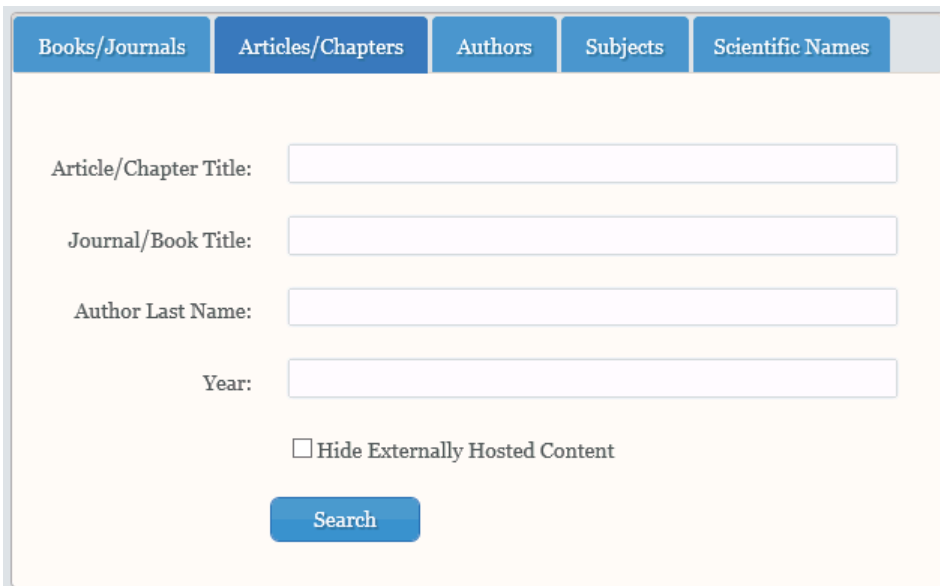

The following four images show the Advanced Search tabs, including the proposed “Hide External Content” checkbox. This approach was demonstrated, and was not well received.

The screenshot shows a search interface with five tabs: Books/Journals, Articles/Chapters, Authors, Subjects, and Scientific Names. The 'Books/Journals' tab is selected. The form contains the following fields and controls:

- Title:
- Author Last Name:
- Volume:
- Edition:
- Year (YYYY):
- Subject:
- Language: (dropdown menu)
- Collection: (dropdown menu)
- Hide Externally Hosted Content

The screenshot shows the same search interface with the 'Articles/Chapters' tab selected. The form contains the following fields and controls:

- Article/Chapter Title:
- Journal/Book Title:
- Author Last Name:
- Year:
- Hide Externally Hosted Content

Checking the “Hide External Content” checkbox when performing an Advanced Search operation prevents external content from appearing in search results. The next two images show the results of a search with and without external content filtering enabled.

OPTION 2

An alternate approach leaves the Advanced Search tabs unchanged from their present state. So, the “Hide External Content” checkboxes that appear in the first four images shown in this document would not be present. Instead, a checkbox would be added to the search results page. That checkbox would be used to hide/show externally hosted content.

The following two images demonstrate what this approach would look like.
